Chapter 276: The Grant of Inner Worlds

---

1. Sung Jin-Woo's Gift of Evolution

As his power and understanding of divine energy reached unfathomable levels, Sung Jin-Woo decided to bestow a profound evolution upon his subjects. He granted the Sung Clan, Apostles of God, Heavenly Soldiers, Dark Apostles, Dark Heavenly Soldiers, Shadowkins, Dragonkins, Shadow Lords, Fiery Dragon Lords, and his Centillions of Materialized Shadow Soldiers the ability to create inner worlds within their bodies.

---

2. The Creation of Inner Worlds

With Sung Jin-Woo's blessing, every subject gained the ability to manifest inner worlds:

Quantity of Inner Worlds:

Some created one vast and intricate inner world.

Others, driven by their ambition and creativity, forged three, a dozen, or even more inner worlds.

Time Dilation:

All inner worlds operated under a time dilation effect: one day outside equaled one year inside.

This allowed for rapid development of civilizations, ecosystems, and structures within these realms.

---

3. Power of Creation Bestowed

Sung Jin-Woo further elevated his subjects by granting them the power of creation:

Creation of Emissaries:

Each individual could now create their own emissaries to serve as extensions of their will.

These emissaries were unique, reflecting the personality, desires, and purpose of their creators.

Troops for Emissaries:

The emissaries themselves had the ability to form their own armies within the inner worlds.

These troops were manifestations of the inner world's essence, tailored to the needs and visions of the emissaries.

---

4. Diversity of Inner Worlds

The inner worlds were as varied as their creators:

Sung Clan Members:

Their inner worlds often resembled celestial paradises, filled with golden cities, lush landscapes, and divine beings.

Their emissaries embodied nobility, power, and wisdom.

Apostles of God:

Their realms radiated pure light, with angelic beings and heavenly fortresses.

Their emissaries were paragons of justice and divine order.

Dark Apostles and Dark Heavenly Soldiers:

Their worlds were shadowy, enigmatic, and brimming with dark power.

Their emissaries were master strategists and fierce warriors.

Shadowkins and Shadow Lords:

Their realms mirrored eternal night, with towering structures and deep shadow oceans.

Their emissaries were embodiments of stealth, cunning, and loyalty.

Dragonkins and Fiery Dragon Lords:

Their inner worlds burned with draconic majesty, filled with fiery skies, molten rivers, and soaring dragons.

Their emissaries were mighty dragons and fierce beast warriors.

Materialized Shadow Soldiers:

Their inner worlds were as diverse as their sheer numbers, ranging from war-torn battlefields to serene, star-filled skies.

Their emissaries were relentless soldiers and protectors of their creators' domains.

---

5. Collective Growth

This monumental evolution initiated a ripple effect across all of Sung Jin-Woo's forces:

Rapid Development:

The inner worlds thrived, with civilizations, cultures, and armies rapidly advancing due to the time dilation.

Unity through Diversity:

Despite the uniqueness of each world, all subjects remained connected to Sung Jin-Woo, ensuring harmony among their realms.

Exponential Power Growth:

The ability to create emissaries and armies led to an unprecedented increase in the power and influence of Sung Jin-Woo's forces.

---

6. Sung Jin-Woo's Observation

From his Umbra Citadel, Sung Jin-Woo observed the evolution of his subjects with satisfaction.

Divine Balance:

While granting immense power to his subjects, he ensured a system of checks and balances to prevent misuse.

A New Era:

This evolution marked the beginning of a new era, where his forces became not just protectors of the multiverse but also creators and rulers of their own microcosms.

Conclusion

The ability to create inner worlds and manifest emissaries elevated Sung Jin-Woo's forces to heights unimaginable. This gift was not merely a demonstration of his power but a testament to his belief in the potential of his subjects, empowering them to forge their own destinies while remaining loyal to his grand vision.